6. Goal Setting
Harris started the conversation by thanking the members for serving on this committee. The group had an opportunity to take a look at the full policy list that needs review and possible edits. After a discussion on what the group felt was a reasonable workload, the consensus was to move forward to review six new policies each month with the acknowledgment that the handbook may not be finalized by June 2025. Board members Carroll and Kowalcze shared examples of the policy review process at their libraries. The examples were to map out a review schedule of two years for each policy and to add the review approval date to the policy document. The process of having a shared document where each member could include questions and comments per policy was agreed as a helpful resource. Checkboxes will be added to the shared document for each committee member as a visual that the review is complete. Lastly, in future meeting packets, only documents with edited markups will be included and clean copies of the policies will not be included.
